PASSES PROTESTED AT FAIR MEETING

Re-Elect J. J. McCann and Harvey Little as Directors at Yearly Meeting.

Re-electing J. J. McCann and Harvey Little, farmers, as directors for three years, the stockholders of the Janesville Farm Bureau association held their annual meeting Saturday afternoon in the Janesville city hall.

There was a plea made for better support to the fair, a discussion on how to pull the institution out of the red, and a vote on the question of whether the granting of passes for the entire week should be continued to stockholders, numbering around 1,000 citizens. Decision on the question was left to the board of directors. The pass evil was declared to be one of the main reasons why the revenue does not come up to the expectation of the public and those interested.

There was one decided improvement noted in the stockholders meeting this year. There were reports and figures in detail showing the expenditure of every cent of money under a modern voucher check system put into effect through the efforts of the directors. The Janesville Chamber of Commerce.

A vote of thanks was passed to the directors for their work and to the Janesville Chamber of Commerce for handling the clerical details and accounts, all serving without pay.

"The people do not fully appreciate the work of the fair directors," declared J. A. Craig. "On becoming a director I was astounded by the time and effort required to attend to a mass of details and business necessary to the running of the park association."

"Good co-operation in putting the fair over will mean the paying off of the debt, and our fair is one of the best means of telling the world what Reck county has in agriculture. I favor the abolishing of the pass policy until we are out of debt."

"It is our own fair and by accepting passes we are simply hurting ourselves," declared J. M. Conway, Edgerton. "The reason the state fair is running behind is because of the political passes that are handed out, robbing the fair of revenue that would put it on its feet."

The granting of one day passes, instead of one for the entire fair period, was favored by Thornton Reih, director.

"We are going to try our utmost to put on a clean fair, not needing any department and I believe the free pass evil should be eliminated," declared John Souiman, president.

The coming year the directors expect to stage a new form of entertainment being planned by John M. Kelley, clerk, and authority on theatricals. The entertainment program generally sets the fair back around $10,000 and this together with the bad breaks experienced last year kept the fair from making revenue for improvements. The estate owned by the association may be sold for the building of new improvements, such as the moving of the horse stable to near the grandstand and turning the entire north end of the park over to stock and agricultural exhibits. More room for stock will be necessary for the coming year and it is hoped that the pens will be made permanent.

The deficit of the year is the amount spent for permanent improvements, which included additions to the grand stand and hog barn, costing $3,678.52.

"Our critics can support the fair better," declared President John Souiman. "I do not believe the threatening outfits in the country should be allowed to continue operating all home. This fair is going to be a community institution and the manner in which it is patronized, determines whether we can go ahead and do the thing the board of directors desire. Our stores and factories should close down more than they do to support the fair in attendance."

The state aid derived for the Janesville fair amounts to $6,678.75 and goes for premiums on agricultural exhibits. The state and grandstand admissions amounted to $12,528.50.

There were around 40 stockholders actually present at the meeting but proxies in sufficient number were checked in to warrant the holding of the meeting. The reports were read by Oscar Nelson, assistant secretary.

TWO SWINE SALES SCHEDULED DURING THE COMING WEEK

A number of Rock county Duroc-Jersey breeders will attend the state sale and night meeting in Madison, for a big part of the consignment is coming from this section.

The Duroc stock is well known for its quality and the bulk of the sale offering is the off-spring from some of the famous black hogs of the Green county herd. FIRE WHISTLE IS HELD UNNECESSARY

Manager Orders Discontinuance of Time-Honored Custom of Sounding Siren.

Sh-h-h! List to a secret! There ain't no fire whistle in Janesville any more!

That is, the whistle is there but it isn't being operated any more when box alarms are sounded. While there may be some who will miss being awakened from a sound sleep in the wee hours of the morning by the shrill blasts of the siren at the pumping station, City Manager Henry Traxler is of the belief that there is no need of such a noisy signal. He says it does more harm than good in that it unnecessarily disturbs the city at night and causes commotion in the schools when blown during the day.

"In my opinion," said the manager, "fire sirens are for use in towns where they have only a volunteer fire department and want to summon all the men to the station whenever there is an alarm. But what's the need of one in a city the size of Janesville, having a paid department and a good alarm telegraph system?"

"The whistle serves no purpose whatsoever. It disrupts order in the schools, and especially at the high school, the pumping station being so nearby."

In cases of box alarms ever since the system was installed, the whistle has been blown twice at the turning in of any box and three times when the fire was out. The siren has never been used following telephone alarms.

The manager ordered the first whistle discontinued several weeks ago as an experiment and has now decided to make it permanent. He says so far as he knows the discontinuance of the whistle the last few weeks has not been noticed by anyone except those connected with the fire department and the pumping station.

National Contest for Safety Poster

Cooperating with the committee of the American Railway association on prevention of highway crossing accidents, the South Janesville safety committee of the Chicago & Northwestern railway announces a national prize contest open to all for the best design of a poster and most suitable slogan for the 1924 safety campaign. Gerald Metzen, chairman of the local committee, has just received details. He plans to bring the plan before the school children and others of the city, including the civic luncheon clubs.

Prizes for posters will be $500 for first; $200 for second; and $100 for third. The slogan prize will be $100. Posters must have a design 21 inches high and 33 inches wide, and must not be in more than four colors. They must be applicable to crossing accident prevention. The slogans must be applicable to crossing accident prevention, brief, catchy, euphonious and practical. In the event the same slogan is submitted by two or more persons, the suggestion first received will be declared the winner.

Simple Colds indicate a need of SCOTT'S EMULSION to build resistance.

You first realize what Scott's Emulsion is, by the strength it brings to the body.

Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J. 23-52

The exclusive title to the accepted design or slogan will become the property of the American Railway association. Selection of poster and slogan winners will be made by a committee of nationally known men, whose names will be announced shortly.

All designs and slogans should be forwarded to H. A. Howe, chairman, committee on prevention of highway crossing accidents, 30 West Street, New York City, not later than Feb. 11.

Wherever you look you see the results in whiter, cleaner teeth. Now learn what they mean to you.

Film ruins teeth
Teeth are clouded by a film—that viscous film you feel. Under old-way brushing, much of it clings and stays. It becomes discolored, forms dingy coats, and hides the beauty of the teeth.
Film also holds food substances which ferment and form acids. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Under old methods, these film-caused troubles became alarming in extent.

Modern science has found ways to combat them. One way disintegrates the film, one removes it without harmful scouring. Able authorities proved these

Yellow Cab
Is Safer Than Your Private Car

"Chains On!" This command flashes into sight at YELLOW CAB headquarters at the first drop of rain or flake of snow.

"Chains On!" means the safety of our passengers; the safety of pedestrians and the safety of other motorists.

The next time it starts to snow or rain watch our drivers almost subconsciously perform a task at the first minute that the private motorist postpones to the last—if he uses chains at all.

It is such things as chains and heaters and decent, courteous drivers, and a hundred other things too numerous to mention, that makes our organization not merely a cab company, but an institution which commands your confidence and patronage.

Janesville concerns dealing in cement have quoted a price of $2.25 a barrel for cement used in the city's 1924 concrete paving program of seven miles. It was announced at the city hall Monday. This is 16 cents a barrel higher than the price obtained by the state on its recent purchase of a vast amount of cement for the coming year. The figures were obtained by City Manager Henry Traxler to be used as a basis for contractors' estimates and to protect the city.

ABE SCHULTZ GETS 1-YEAR SENTENCE

Chicago Youth Goes to Reformatory for Burglary of Edgerton Cafe.

Pleading guilty to a charge of burglary in the day-time, Abe Schultz, 22-year old Chicago youth, was sentenced to one year in the state reformatory at Green Bay by Judge H. L. Maxfield in municipal court here Monday. Schultz was arrested by Chief Ben Springer for looting the basement of the bankrupt Liberty cafe in Edgerton last week, and was bound over to Rock county municipal court by justice of the Peace Joseph Hruska, Edgerton.

Schultz told Judge Maxfield he left Chicago six weeks ago when he was unable to secure work there. He spent several weeks in Edgerton, and wound up his visit there by stealing about $6 worth of canned goods from the restaurant formerly operated by Nick Strocenka and Louis Prevodorski. He gained entrance to the building by crawling through a hole near the boiler in the basement.

The Chicago youth declared to the court that it was the first time he had ever been arrested. Both Chief Springer and Justice Hruska were present in court when sentence was pronounced. It is expected Sheriff Fred Hruska will take Schultz to the state institution Tuesday.

Alumni celebrations are being planned in most cities of the state. Meetings are scheduled in a number of cities in other states, where there are large groups of former students.

O. A. Oestreich, president of the local association, is in charge of arrangements here, but reservations for the banquet, which is to be held in the high school cafeteria, should be made by calling the secretary, F. O. Holt, at the hotel.

January May Set New Fire Record.

With 40 alarms already recorded and three days remaining in the present month, indications point to the fire department's high record of 42 calls in one month being broken in January. Twice in the history of the department has the 42 mark been reached—once last February and the first time two years ago.

Alarms averaged one a day over the week-end.

A timber next to a chimney at the store of J. M. Boatwick & Sons, 20 South Main street, caught fire at 4:30 p. m. Saturday and caused considerable excitement in the store for a few minutes. There was practically no loss.

At 8:50 Sunday night, the department was called out by a chimney fire in the Golden Rule restaurant, West Milwaukee street.

Monday morning a run was made at 8:00 o'clock to the home of Mrs. Ed. Murdoch, 28 North East street, where a remodeling job is in progress. A workman accidentally dropped a lighted match through a hole in a partition, resulting in a blaze that did several dollars' damage.

As to the Mellon Bill.

There are peculiar ideas abroad concerning the Mellon bill and tax reduction. "I am for the bill," said a woman citizen, "because it makes the rich pay the taxes." "I am for the bill, because it taxes exempt securities," was the attitude of a citizen who was discussing the matter with the editor of the Gazette. "I am for the Mellon plan because I have faith in Mellon," was the remark of another citizen of Janesville who is the head of an industrial plant.

Not one of the three had read the bill. One cannot blame them. It makes twenty columns of a newspaper the size of the Gazette printed in small type. It carries no clear explanation as to its provisions. It does not tax exempt securities because that can only be brought about by constitutional amendment. As to whether it makes the rich pay the taxes or not, remains to be seen and is a matter of discussion. As for its being a good bill because it is Mr. Mellon's bill, leaves the question open for argument also. It may be that Mr. Mellon is not infallible nor yet a second Adam Smith. It is quite likely that not a score of persons in the first congressional district have read the bill. What we know about it is that it proposes to reduce taxes, both on small incomes and to cut the taxes on larger incomes so that the highest tax paid will not be above 25 per cent.

The Mellon argument is that the revenue of the nation is not increased by the higher surtaxes. When we had lower surtaxes and the excess rate was 13 percent on incomes of $300,000 or over, we collected in 1916 $30,000,000 in revenue while in 1921 with a surtax of 65 per cent we received only $34,000,000 in revenue. Mr. Mellon says we do not get the revenue when we press the rate to the higher point. That is the simple foundation for the tax bill. The other matters are explanatory. The revenue that would ordinarily get to the government does not go because it is sidetracked from its natural function of being taxable by being invested in tax exempt securities to the extent of twelve billions of dollars. There seems to be no possibility of a repeal of the tax exemptions by statute.

But it is held that the capital released from its necessity of hiding in exempt securities will readily pay the lower surtax, provide as much revenue as it does now, make capital more elastic and more eager to be invested in industrial activities. This is conjecture and there will be no way of arbitrarily directing capital along this road. After the argument for the lower surtax has come to the point of fact that the present high rate does not give any more revenue than the lower rate did, we may stop there as to fact. What follows is mere guess work in reference to what capital will do. Of course the way to stop the temptation for bonding municipalities and going into all sorts of extravaganzas is to start the constitutional amendment against exempt securities on its way.

The other argument for lower surtaxes is that the small taxpayer pays the high surtaxes any way because he pays more for his living and his rents and everything else he purchases is higher. That sounds well but lacks economic justification in details. It may have an effect on these things but only under the rule that the ultimate consumer pays it all, cost, profit, tax, transportation, delivery and every minute detail entering into the making and marketing of any article. The one argument that the revenue of the nation is not benefited by the high surtaxes should be enough. What is the use of taxing something that isn't there? It may satisfy the demagogue that he is putting the screws on the rich but when he comes to hunt for the rich to put them through the surtax mill there is no one to qualify as a victim.

The Mellon bill is not likely to pass because it cannot go through either the house or the senate without consent of a mixed majority of both democrats and republicans who are anxious to keep up the pretense of making the rich pay.

Cleaning up Hurlay.

Among the places in Wisconsin where the laws against the sale of liquor have been generally violated, Hurlay has always held first place. Its offenders, taken into court from time to time have paid nominal charges in fines which have been held in lieu of license. Now Judge Luse has sent several of the leaders in the bootlegging saloons to jail. One of them made the age-old plea about his wife and children. To this Judge Luse responded:

"I feel a keen sympathy for these children. I do not feel, however, that sympathy should sway the judgment of this court. This man's first thought should have been of that family. Men who wish to show consideration for their families should keep out of the moonshine business." It may be noted that the coward criminal, the low and the high, always gets behind the petticoats of the wife or mother, or the phantoms of the children, in plea why punishment should not be meted out from the bench. It is so also at the newspaper offices. "It will kill my wife," or "I will lose my job," is the plea of the man who has been raising Cain, violating laws both of God

New Territory May Be Acquired

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington.—The political disturbances in Mexico bring up anew the question of the possible acquisition by the United States of a portion of Mexican territory which this country long has regarded as a natural and desirable possession—the peninsula of Lower California. On many occasions in the history of the United States, the government at Washington has given the most serious consideration to such a proposal. Only a year or two ago Senator Ashurst of Arizona offered a resolution in the senate providing for the purchase of the territory and nearly every time there is any disorder in the republic across our southern border, sentiment for annexation of this territory makes itself felt.

The peninsula itself is not in its present state particularly attractive. The lack of water is its greatest fault. Nearly the whole of the peninsula, which is 750 miles long and in width 150 miles at most, 40 miles at least, is arid. In the widest, the central part, lies the desert of Cjo de Liebre, a waste of sand where only cactus grows and only rattlesnakes live.

Yet the soil is such that, if irrigated, this desert land would be as productive as any in the world. Some of the few Americans who have traversed this country have said that within a few hours after the very rare showers, the green vegetation of the desert and in the most luxuriant, only to wither in the burning sun.

By an odd quirk of geography, the United States does not control the mouth of the Colorado river. One of the reasons advanced for the purchase of Lower California is this fact, for acquisition would bring in the river mouth.

The river empties into the Gulf of Lower California, within the Mexican territory. The story is told that when the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, which fixed the international boundary after the Gadsden purchase, was signed, the Mexican commissioners and engineers took advantage of the American representatives' ignorance of surveying and of the country and wrote this angle into the treaty, unrecalled by the United States. After the treaty was signed, the agreement stood.

It has been pointed out by engineers that if the United States controlled the mouth of the Colorado, the waters of that stream could be used to irrigate Lower California and make it blossom with vegetable riches.

A high range of mountains, the San Pedro Martir range, extends down the peninsula, forming a sort of backbone. This range is so high that for a large part of the year it is snow-covered. It is believed that the snow waters could be stored and employed for irrigation. Indeed, during the days of the occupation of the Jesuits and the Dominicans, conduits and aqueducts were built with amazing engineering skill to convey the mountain waters into the valleys or arroyos where the fertile land produced an abundance of food. The winter waters of San Ignacio were famous enough to be known in the capitals of Europe two centuries ago. They were captured from vines grown on the soil of Lower California.

The peninsula is said, also, to possess great mineral wealth. The Rothschilds have had a concession on the east coast of the peninsula, at Rosalia, for a century and annually take out great wealth in silver and copper. The first thing the Spaniards of Hernando Cortez learned upon coming to this part of the world was that this peninsula was the treasure house of the Aztecs where came all their gold. But the Indians would not reveal their secret mines and no very extensive gold mines have been found. It is a curious fact, however, that German geologists, who before the war, were looking about the world for information on which to base concessions reported to their government the discovery of important deposits of potash, guano and sulphates in this territory. Many other valuable minerals are presumed to exist there.

It is interesting to recall that Lower California once came very near indeed to becoming American territory. Away back in 1853 a San Francisco editor of an adventurous disposition, William Walker by name, afterwards to become world-famous as "Nicasarua Walker," organized a filibustering expedition to seize Lower California. He landed with a little band of 45 interlopers at La Paz. He took the town of San Jose del Cabo and then moved up the west coast capturing Magdalena Bay and the town of Todos Santos. He declared a republic with himself as dictator. Immediately he opened negotiations with the United States. It was his object to repeat the history of Texas. Texas, it will be remembered, succeeded from Mexico, became a republic and then voluntarily joined the United States. Walker's plan was to do the same thing with Lower California. The United States could not seize Mexican territory, but after certain territory had won its independence, it could then receive the free domain into the Union.

This is precisely what would have happened save for the political situation in the United States. The Civil war was less than a decade in the future and the rivalry between the north and south was waxing warmer every day. Jefferson Davis, a southern senator and afterwards president of the confederacy, had encouraged Walker. Davis was anxious to have the peninsula come into the Union as a slave state which would increase the pro-slave votes in congress. Northern senators saw this motive and the result was they would take up the proposal to admit the new republic.

Quick action was imperative because Walker was holding a vast territory with a handful of men. He probably would have held it for some time and might possibly have made good his claims as an independent republic, but he became ambitious and attempted to conquer more Mexican territory over in Sonora on the mainland. Here he came to grief. His little army was beset by an old mission. They ran out of rifle cartridges and were the same of the bibles found in the mission to make new ones. The legend is that the bullets made from the desecrated bibles would not hit the enemy. At all events, Walker and his men were routed and fled to the American border where they surrendered to United States troops. Thus ended that chapter.

After the Civil war, August Belmont, Gen. John Logan, Caleb Cushing, Benjamin F. Butler and a number of other distinguished Americans formed a colonization scheme for taking up all the territory around Magdalena bay. It has been strongly urged that these men intended to populate the region with American and then break off from Mexico, copying Walker's original plan. Whatever truth there is in that, the scheme failed. The country was too arid.

and man, and who wants the newspapers to conceal his sins and acts. These persons never stop apparently to think that they should have given this situation some consideration before getting into trouble and later damn the newspaper or the court because it will not relieve them of the consequences. The two greatest deterrents of crime are a just court and pitiless publicity.

New York city has a low death rate from tuberculosis now. It was first in deaths in 1907, in 1923 it was the sixth city. One of the reasons given is the fact that even with the present conditions of equal in the slums and the inattention to sanitation by the flood of immigrants constantly rising, the death of alcoholics stimulant has made the lower death rate possible. It is also true of infant mortality where alcohol exacted heavy toll.

It is too bad to make Mr. Sinclair come all the way back from Europe to tell how he did it.

JUST FOLKS

THE WHIP OF CARE

Oh, there are burdens to bear and the trials are many,
Butcher and baker and bread man must have their last penny—
Life's not all laughter and loving, and well do I know it,
Care leaves a welt on the flesh, be you merchant or poet;
Lawyer or doctor or tradesman, the great or the small,
Care has a whip in his hand and he lashes at all of us.

Oh, there are times when I groan and I feel my flesh singling,
Times when there's too much of pain and not enough of singing,
Times when men's greed seems to stifle me, times when in duty
Seems to be foolish and vain, robbing life of all its beauty.
Then comes a boy to my knee with his eyes brightly flashing,
And I laugh in derision at care and the whip that he's lashing.

This I shall wrest from it all: their peace and their pride in me,
The faith and respect of my friends who have glimpsed the inside of me;
The butcher and baker and bread man shall have what I owe them,
They shall be glad to have known me as I have been happy to know them.
For from the care of the world, from the burdens and slings of our duty,
Come the treasures of love and esteem, come peace and friendship and beauty.

Not without these is life good, and not without care can man gain them.

The garments of honor shall feed if the butcher and baker shall stain them.

With courage we purchase our friends, care sanctifies all that we cherish.

By faith and by strength we find peace, and without them we languish and sorrow.

By the burdens we bear and the hurts, by the conquests which run through life's story,
The thing we call manhood is made and mankind's the giver of glory.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author.

NO, NO, NO, NO, NO

"Is there," asks a clergyman, "such a condition as worms in children?" Mrs. Ben Todd is overjoyed talking about it in connection with my young son. I have enjoyed your dissertation about "colds." Although an absolute layman, I have learned a great deal from the medical standpoint, my observation seems to agree with your teachings. One often finds half clothed children clumped while half wrapped children are always ailing. But, I had a friend who was leading his last winter. It was very cold, about zero. He got very warm, took off his coat, and he felt his wife's hand. Presently his wife came along and stopped to talk with him. My friend stopped and talked without resuming his clothing. Five days later he died of pneumonia. If I saw with my head a draft I feel a headache. Am I to understand that the germs of pneumonia or coryza, or whatever it is, are lurking around and that sudden chill of health in the child, who knows this is going to sound like the babblings of a denkey to you. But you must remember we who have been brought up to believe in colds are avaricious of our children's health, childhood's beliefs, even though science points out their error."

The answer to the question about children having worms is—surest thing. Approaching this in even four children harbor worms in the intestine; as a general rule these common parasites cause no appreciable disturbance of health. It is very unusual for a child to have worms, but, to deny the child proper medical attention while you amuse yourself and the neighbors with the worm myth. At the same time it is quite true that now and then these worms (usually they are Lumbricoid worms, similar to common garden worms but somewhat paler) do act upon some disordered child, and the little majority of cases. So you see what an injustice is done the child from every point of view when you jump to the conclusion that a feverish digestive disturbance, perhaps associated with a turned tongue, heavy or sweetish breath, white lines down the flushed cheeks, bright eyes, twitches, or jumpiness, and the like, means worms, and proceed to ply the unhappy child with real or spurious "worm medicine."

No one is competent to form an opinion whether an ailing child is infected with worms, or not, without attending the child. Not even a doctor can diagnose worm infestation unless he finds some worms or their microscopic eggs in the intestinal excreta.

Most of the spurious "worm remedies" would not better the worms if worms were present further than ordinary physics do. All of the real worm remedies, the vermifuges, are a little risky to trifling with, and should be administered only under the direction of the physician. Poisoning has occurred in many instances when incompetent persons have given ailing children such medicines, convulsions, blindness, even death.

Children become infested with these parasites, not from eating too much candy, sugar or sweetly, but by ingesting the eggs of the worms, which reach their mouths by various routes from the ground or water polluted by the intestinal excretions of other persons who harbor the worms. Or they reinforce themselves by carrying the eggs on their soiled fingers directly to their mouths.

(We'll deal with the man who succumbed to a fever in our next outbreak.)

Please recommend the insulin treatment for diabetes. Have been under the care of our family physician for years but he is extremely busy and I feel that I am not getting the best results.

Answer.—Any competent physician can administer the insulin treatment for diabetes. The market is flooded with insulin, but the method available everywhere to physicians.

Doping the Face.

Please advise me whether the application of ice to my face every night will promote the growth of the least little bit of hair or fuzz.

Answer.—It would be rather irritating; any such constant irritation tends to make the hair fall out or down coarser and visible.

Tongue Tied.

I am a boy aged 18 years and I am tongue tied. Is it too late to have it cut, would it be dangerous, does it cause a swelling of the tongue, would it help me to talk better? (M. F.)

Answer.—Any good doctor who does surgery can remove the tongue tie, but it is doubtful whether your impediment of speech is due to such a cause.

The sheriff controlled his temper. It was an effort, but he succeeded. "Anything you want to say, Hank?" he asked. "You see, Hank, a slippery dick like you, we never can tell what he'll be doing next. And ever since that saddle was at your ranch, I've had to keep an eye on you, Hank. On you and your brothers and your pa and the rest of your blin'."

You know what sometimes happens to a gent that sticks his nose in where it ain't wanted, you see? The sheriff showed his teeth. "Meanin'."

It was Hank's turn to smile. "Give it a name your own self."

"I've been threatened before. I'm still living."

"I ain't makin' any threats."

It would have pleased Top Sawyer immensely to perforate Hank then and there. Sometimes being sheriff was a drawback. "Where'd you get shot?" he demanded at a venture.

"This," said Hank, nursing his slung right arm with his left hand, "is a sprain."

"A sprain? Yes, certainly. Your sprain seems to be bleeding again."

Hank glanced down at his bandaged wrist. "I broke the skin," he said sullenly.

"Accidents will happen," said the sheriff. "Where's Pap?"

Suspicion darkened Hank's eye. "I don't know where Pap is."

"Is he at the ranch?"

"I guess maybe."

"You guess maybe wrong. I've just come from the ranch. Only Miss Hawkins there."

"I dunno where Pap is," persisted Hank.

"Know where Slim is? Or Thorne?"

Hank shook his head. "Not me. You're a good li'l brother. Pap learned you considerable in your lifetime. I left a message for you at the ranch. Yeah, I want you and Fay and Slim and Thorne to be back in time, to be at my office in Farewell at three o'clock Wednesday afternoon."

"The sheriff? Top Sawyer? What did he want?"

"Yes, I mean the sheriff! Top Sawyer! And he wants the whole outfit except Pap to be at his office at three o'clock on Wednesday afternoon."

"What for?"

"How do I know what for?"

"Did he say?"

"If he had I'd tell you. I suppose you've brought back Bill's hair and young Dolly's flapping on your belt."

"Aw, shut up!"

Hank's laugh was sardonic. "I told you you couldn't catch up with me. But, oh, no, you knew better. Most positive about it, too. You just had to try your luck and leave me sittin' here like a bump on a log."

Alkali in Soap Bad For the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully. If you want to keep your hair looking its best, many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This free alkali makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Multileaf coconut oil shampoo, which is pure and greasy, and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonsful is sufficient to cleanse your hair and scalp thoroughly. Whom you wash the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Multileaf coconut oil shampoo at any drug store; it is inexpensive and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

Mrs. Eldred is happy to advise all mothers about the care of their children of any age, or on any subject which does not belong in the field of the doctor.

BED WETTING

This is a common disaster, and spoils not only the comfort of the child but the mother's. It is a condition of the spine which the child is born with, and it is still not cured. Boys are more often afflicted than girls, and sometimes they reach the age of puberty before they are relieved.

Scoldings and punishments are of no avail in helping this condition; in fact they help to accentuate it, and no matter how willing the child is to keep himself continent during the night, when he is asleep, he has no control of his bladder, and should not be punished for it.

There are several ways that have been used in curing this ailment, and one of the most successful is practiced by a doctor in a home for the boys, where there are many cases to be treated. The base of the spine is lower in resistance, and this should be stimulated either by electricity, applied by an expert; massage; or spongings of cold water. Let the child lie face downward on the bed, just before retiring. Sponge the lower part of the spine with very cold water and rub the skin to a glow. During this time talk to him about the efficacy of this treatment and the fact that you are making the nerves up so that they will help to keep the child aware of what he is doing, even when asleep. If one convinces the child that his subconsciousness will stay awake while he sleeps, one has done much to cure him. At least one of the night the child should be awakened and made to go to the toilet, and this may be how willing the child is to time, or if they retire early, an alarm clock can be used to wake the mother at some certain hour. All this requires patience, but the child should never be punished for the nights in which he fails to keep dry and the goal of success always held before him. If he is made to get up once at night, where there are many cases to be treated. The base of the spine is lower in resistance, and this should be stimulated either by electricity, very much. He asked to bring me home and I let him.

There is really nothing you can do to force the boy to show greater interest in you. Since he took you home, however, you have something to encourage him to do. Perhaps later on he will show even greater interest in you. Try not to be jealous of the other girl and by no means let him see that you are jealous. Be friendly, but not eager.

TRoublesome TATTLE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 17 years old and I have been going with a boy for a year. I love him very much, and I think he likes me. But there is another girl who runs around telling tales. How will I get her to keep quiet? He goes with her sometimes, and then tells me what he heard. How can I keep him from going with her and believing what she tells him?

The more you fret about what people have to say concerning you, the more they are apt to say. Do as nearly as possible what you consider right, and then do not worry about what people say. It would be advisable to be particularly friendly to the girl who talks so much, but never make a confident of her, since you know from experience that she talks so much. Do not try to keep the boy from going with whoever he wishes, even if it is the girl who has proved herself false to you. He will not believe what she says about you if he knows you to be otherwise.

OATMEAL PASTE

After you have given the skin a thorough steaming followed by a cream massage, an excellent way of finishing the refreshing treatment is to use an oatmeal paste. This is cooling, cleansing, astringent and bleaching.

You will probably be able to purchase the coarsely ground oatmeal powder. If not, take the ordinary oatmeal you buy for breakfast and put it several times through a meat grinder with the finest blade on. This will give you a very coarse powder but one that will do. You do not wish anything as fine as the powdered oatmeal used for the blackhead treatment. The meal can be perfumed, or not as you wish. If perfume is used, cold cream treatments. The oatmeal paste is just the proper finish. It absorbs all the cream on or near the surface of the skin, tightens the pores, absorbs a little of the excess waxiness substance that forms the blackhead and allowed to stay on five minutes or so.

The oatmeal paste is particularly beneficial if you have an unusually dry skin.

JUDGE TO PASS ON COMMITMENT JOBS

Contempt Proceedings Against Roy Stoddard Dismissed by Grimm.

The most effective way of curbing violations of the liquor laws is to make trafficking in liquor unsafe and unprofitable, declared Judge George Grimm in pronouncing sentence Friday afternoon upon five defendants in the Rock county circuit court here. "As long as intoxicants, whether in liquid or solid form, can be obtained there will be found men to drink them, even at the risk of blindness, insanity and even death."

Judge Grimm also indicated that he was not satisfied with the present commitment law, under which a prisoner is paroled out of the jail during the term of sentence. While no criticism was offered on the part of the sheriff, Fred Foley had carried out the Humber law, the court demanded that all contracts for the paroling of prisoners be presented for approval of the court. It is an accepted fact that the circuit court, and other judges, have not been satisfied in the past in the manner in which the sheriff has paroled prisoners convicted of prohibition law violations.

Five Arrested
During the hearing Friday John W. Hemming, Mike Restivo and J. P. Fitch, were fined $500 and costs or in default, six months in jail. In the case of the Rev. Mr. Schooff, the law of God is involved and not the laws of the Missouri synod, and declared that the Rev. Mr. Schooff had made a mistake "as usual."

From the rear of the room came an eloquent plea for the church members to support the law. Rev. Mr. Schooff, in the case of the Rev. Mr. Schooff, as well as the law of the church, by Harold Yahn. Mr. Yahn said that after hearing the Rev. Mr. Schooff, he was not sure whether he would join him in voting Pastor Schooff out of the church.

"I am very sorry the whole matter has come up," said Mr. Yahn. "I for one would not have known about it unless it came out in the paper. After hearing the Rev. Mr. Schooff, I am not sure whether I would join him in voting Pastor Schooff out of the church."

"The main culture of the whole matter has been given many years of his life to work in the south. Aside from the law in this case I believe we should look at the man who has been working and remain a member of this church."

"If we don't stick by the law we will not stick by the law. I am very sorry the whole matter has come up," said Mr. Yahn. "I for one would not have known about it unless it came out in the paper. After hearing the Rev. Mr. Schooff, I am not sure whether I would join him in voting Pastor Schooff out of the church."
